The Waterloo Chamber

This chamber was completed to celebrate the Battle of Waterloo in 1815. The huge portrait on the opposite wall as you enter the room is of one of the commanders in that Battle - The Duke of Wellington. He gave his name to every day items we still use quite a lot on rainy days. Can you guess what they are? Look closely at the painting to see if you can find any clues.

The Garter Throne Room

This throne chair is one of three used by Queen Elizabeth II at her Coronation in 1953. It displays The Queen's Cypher (EIIR), which stands for Elizabeth II Regina. Regina is the Latin word for queen. On a king's cypher, the 'R' stands for Rex, for king. See if you can find other cyphers belonging to Queen Elizabeth II or even King Charles III. (CIIR) How many can you find?

CIIR  EIIR

This is where a Knight of the Garter would meet the sovereign. All the portraits in this room are of monarchs dressed in blue Garter Robes, except the one which shows Queen Elizabeth II wearing her Coronation Robes, 70 years ago. Imagine what it must feel like to become a Knight. Don't forget these Knights walk tall and proud as they make their way around the State Apartments. Make sure you do the same!

The Grand Reception Room

This room is used for large parties and events in the Castle. Look towards the window, and find a large green urn. This was too heavy to move when in 1992, a fire spread through the Castle. The urn was badly cracked on the outside due to heating and cooling too quickly. It had to be repaired like a jigsaw. Look closely and see how hard it must have been to put it back together.

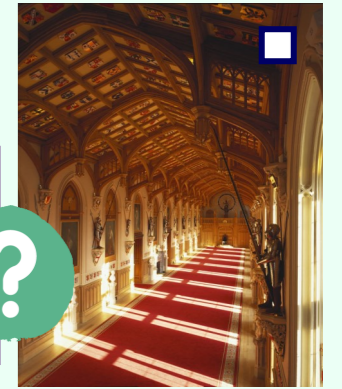

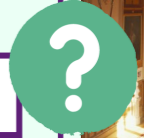

How many pieces do you think there were? _____

St George's Hall

The shields that decorate the ceiling show the coats of arms of the Knights of the Garter. In the middle of the room there are some blank ones.

Can you guess why they are blank?
